that will without a doubt appeal to a great majority of the voters, no matter what they may think of the instrument as a whole, is that which provides that on or before the second Monday of March of each year the burgesses of the borough shall furnish to the warden an estimate in writing of the probable expense to be incurred in their respective departments, for the ensuing fiscal year. Duplicates of these estimates are at the same time to be ensuing fiscal year. Duplicates of these estimates are at the same time to be sent to the burgess of finance, who shall certify to the warden the amount of money to be raised by taxation during the ensuing year and also the estimated amount of revenue from all sources other than the tax levy. In a plain way, this means that the borough officials will be required to compile a budget for the fiscal year to pile a budget for the fiscal year to ensue, something that has not been required under the present charter, and publish it so that the electors will have an emportunity to know how have an opportunity to know how much money is to be asked for for the ensuing year and the purposes to which it is to be devoted. Incidentally, the general provisions article in that charter creates a "chief" of the police department, a distinction that officers holding the place have enjoyed by common consent for years, as far as allow there have be that pame went alcalling them by that name went al-though they have in reality been bai-ligs, as is "Chief" Pilling today.

that the moving picture monopoly of New London will be protected to the extent that there will be no opposition. This was demonstrated when the council by a vote of 9 to 8 voted against permitting petitioners to go into the business in the same neighborhood with the two that are now doing the axclusive business in that line, and who have gained control of the Lawrence for the evident purpose of the farther protection of their business from competition. Of course, the petition was not opposed on the ground that it would interfere with the business of the others, but it was openly stated that there is already two well conducted picture houses in the vicinity and that their business should not stated that there is already two well conducted picture houses in the vicinity and that their business should not be hampered by a local concern that intended to do business during the summer months only. The pretext for opposition was that the permit could not be granted, as the proposed open air show would be a violation of the ordinance regulating buildings within the fire limits, and the nine aldermen stuck to the opposition mainly on that the ordinance would be strictly com-

The petitioners asked for permission to erect a small fireproof building to be used as a ticket office and a fireproof small structure for the moving picture machine and the operator. It was the intention to have a fly of canvas that could be spread over the andience in case of rainstorms and to be rolled to one side on other occasions; the petition also cited the intent to build a high board fence. The council had nothing to do with the fence feature, and according to the ordinance nothing to do with anything except insistence that buildings withexcept insistence that buildings with-in the fire district must not be of in-flammable material. Some of the aidermen, nine of them, claimed that the canvas covering in emergencies consti-tuted a building and that therefore the petition could not be granted, as it was violation of the ordinance, and stated that the corporation counsel had given verbal opinion to that affect. For what seemed to be a very small, For what seemed to be a very small, a minor matter, it created a bitter feeling in the aldermanic body and the mayor did not take kindly to the action of the majority by one when the decisive vote was taken. While he was opposed to moving picture shows, personally and on general principles, he argued that such exhibitions were isgalized and that there should be no discrimination for personal reasons as to who should conduct the business in Alderman James F. O'Leary was one of the members who was in favor of the m of the members who was in favor of granting the petition and said he was somewhat surprised to see some of the whembers so vigorously in the opposition on the ground that this picture show might prove a nuisance, for the want of a better reason. He struck the spike with a heavy sledge when he said that some of these same men were members of the court of common council when a gang of Indian medicina men were permitted to erect tents not far from the location specified in the petition and to conduct open air the work went forward at this time.

And the very next day a large force of men were employed in digging a ditch for the conduit pipes in Monthe petition and to conduct open air performances, with discordant noisy musical accompaniment, and the main feature being the strong-lunged shout ing of the professional hawkers, which was more disturbing to the neighbors was more disturbing to the heighbors, see, a thousand fold more, than would be a plane and violin, or other soft-toned instruments, in an open air pleture show. If the earnest and persistent work of these varied religious organizations is not crowned with success, then it can be put down as truth that New London is really a wicked city and almost beyond redemption. To the thoroughbred New Londoner, and there are many of him, the city is just as good, morally and otherwise, as any other city in the state, and fully as well governed, and perhaps just a little bit more progressive, especially at the present time One reason given for the permanency of the Salvation Army and the kindred religious working organizations who hold open air meetings is the liberality of the contributions made
